

Our Company

Bryan O'Brien is BMB Films founder and Creative Director.

After graduating from U.C.G with B.A(hons) in English Literature, Sociology and Political Science Bryan spent 8 years in senior management in the hospitality industry in Europe & the U.S.A He then attended and graduated "Magna cum laude" from the New York Film Academy in 2004. While there, his short film "Ahmed and Elizabeth" was chosen to be screened at the United Nations and international peace conferences in Australia, Africa and the Middle East.

Bryan then worked for two years for Hollywood Producer Edwin Atkins in New York city furthering his education in cinematography, directing, editing and production management. At that time he also line produced the international award winning documentary "Steal a Pencil for me" directed by Oscar nominee Michele Ohayon.

In April '08 he founded BMB Films in Ireland with a view to providing first class productions at affordable costs. Apart from his company work, Bryan is also a professional photographer, has worked as an editor for Irish TV, has just produced a Limerick based film with R.T.E and preparing to direct a feature film in the U.S.A in 2011.